If a subscriber wishes his copy of the JOURNAL discontinued at the expiration of his subscription, notice to that effect should be sent; otherwise it is assumed that a continuance of the subscription is desired.

By an unavoidable mistake the name of the writer of the article "An Afternoon in the House of Commons," published in the December number of the JOURNAL, was omitted. We are indebted for the paper to the Hon. Simeon E. Baldwin, one of our most valued contributors, whose impressions of the English Parliament cannot fail to be of especial interest to all readers of the JOURNAL.

By the death of John William Hendrie, Yale '51, the Yale Law School lost one of its warmest friends and most generous benefactors. Hendrie Hall, the new home of the Law Department, will stand as a lasting memorial to his far-sighted generosity, and his name will also live among Yale men because of the aid he gave his alma mater, contributing much needed funds for the encouragement of debating at Yale. Our next numer will contain a commemorative sketch by Dean Wayland of the Law School.
